Base ball enthusiasts will read with interest the following about a player who pitched for Barre-Montpelier two years ago: "That 'scab' pitcher has risen again to bother Pitcher Page-Carrick. Carrick mixed up in a strike out West years ago and as a result played under an assumed name for several years, during his first year in the New England league in fact. Last season he played with Fall River under his real name of Carrick and was drafted by Newark of the Eastern league. The Central Labor Union of Newark has now declared a boycott on the team if Carrick is played."

The master in chancery, R. M. Harvey of Montpelier, in the case of Ambrose Averill estate of this city, has now the evidence under consideration, the arguments having been completed yesterday. E. Alice Averill, widow of Ambrose, is the grantor in chancery and the children of the late are the defendants. Probate court allowed the widow a share of the estate over and above the $8,000 willed for her use, from which decision an appeal was made by the children. Then Mrs. Averill brought chancery case for all the property conveyed to the children, including that given them by Mr. Averill a short time before his death. The hearing before R. M. Harvey is on this last request. Mrs. Averill taking exceptions to the answer filed to her chancery petition.

EVENLY BALANCED

"The Dorothy Dodd" Shoe is so evenly balanced that it gives a perfect poise to the body—one in which the weight falls first on the ball of the foot, thus causing the heel to descend gently instead of with the nerve-jarring impact so common to most shoes.

If this were the only point in which "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes were superior, it would mean much, but there are a dozen other points in which they possess advantages over other makes.
